TEXT TYPE · B2 · BHS · „BROSCHÜRE“ · INFORMS & PERSUADES

The leaflet

Inform and persuade at a glance

Word count	Register	Title	Key feature
~250 words	Persuasive, reader-friendly	Required – plus subheadings	Headed sections + call to action

STRUCTURE AND LAYOUT

Main title – names the offer or event clearly and makes people want to read on
Short intro / hook – ~30–40 words – say what this is and why it matters to the reader
Subheading + section 1 – one benefit or block of information under its own heading
Subheading + section 2 – the next point: short, easy to scan, one idea per section
Subheading + section 3 – the third content point under its own heading
Call to action – tell the reader the one thing to do next (come, sign up, get in touch)
Practical details – date, time, place, price, website, phone – the facts people need

DO'S AND DON'TS

DO

- Give it a clear title and break the text into short, headed sections
- Know exactly who the leaflet is for and write straight to them
- Tell readers what they gain from the offer, then give the facts
- Keep sections short and easy to scan: people read a leaflet quickly, often standing up
- Address the reader directly ("you") and use imperatives: come along, find out more
- End with a clear call to action – the one thing you want the reader to do
- Add the practical details: date, time, place, price, how to get in touch
- Match the register to the audience and keep it easy to read: no slang, no official-sounding language

DON'T

- Don't write one long block of text; break it into short sections with headings
- Don't leave out the subheadings: they show at once that this is a leaflet
- Don't tell a personal story from your own life (that belongs in a blog)
- Don't weigh arguments for and against: a leaflet promotes one thing
- Don't use slang or text-message spelling
- Don't forget the call to action and the contact details: readers need to know what to do next

WEAKER VS. STRONGER

WEAKER

This leaflet provides information about the annual town festival taking place in the market square.

STRONGER

Live music, free food and the whole town in one square: the Seetal Festival is back, and you are invited.

Why it matters. A leaflet has to catch the attention of someone who looks at it for two seconds at a bus stop. The weak version describes itself like a report and gives no reason to read on. The strong version starts with what the reader gets and speaks to them directly.

KEY TIP

> A leaflet (in German often „Broschüre“) informs and persuades a target audience. The layout does half the work: a clear title, short sections with headings, direct address and a call to action. Imagine someone reading it quickly at a bus stop: they should get the message in a few seconds. Keep the register persuasive but careful: warmer than a report, more careful than a blog. You write only the text (title, headed sections, call to action), with no drawings or layout design.

MODEL TEXT

Open Day at Schulzentrum Seetal – See Your Future in Action (~250 words · Persuasive register)

The task. Your school is holding an open day for students who are about to finish lower secondary school. Write a leaflet for the event.

In your leaflet you should:

- describe the workshops visitors can take part in
- explain how visitors can find out what everyday school life is like
- point out what the school offers for different interests

Write around 250 words. The model follows the five-paragraph plan: introduction, one paragraph for each content point, conclusion.

Structure · Text-specific · Content · Language

Open Day at Schulzentrum Seetal – See Your Future in Action[1]

Not sure what to do after lower secondary school?[2] Spend a morning with us and find out. On Saturday, 7 November, our whole school opens its doors: workshops, real projects and students who are happy to show you around[3]. Come and see what studying here is actually like, with no pressure and no entrance test.

Try Before You Choose[4]

Instead of reading about our courses, you can try them. In our workshops you can build a small circuit, plan a three-course menu or design a marketing campaign[5], all in a single morning. Teachers and senior students work alongside you, so there is no way to get it wrong.

Meet the People, Not Just the Building[6]

Want to know what life here is really like? Ask the people who live it.[7] Current students will show you the labs and workshops and answer your questions about lessons, homework and life after graduation.

Something for Every Interest

Whether you are drawn to technology, business or hospitality[8], we have a branch that fits. Each one leads to the Matura and a recognised qualification, and you can add extras such as a second foreign language, a robotics team or a work placement abroad[9]. Our advisers will help you work out which path actually suits you.

Come and See for Yourself[10]

Bring your parents, bring a friend, bring your questions.[11] Entry is free and no registration is needed.

When: Saturday, 7 November, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.
Where: Schulzentrum Seetal, Bildungsweg 1, 1234 Seetal
More information: www.schulzentrum-seetal.example[12]

WHAT THE EXAMINER NOTICES IN THIS MODEL

The numbers match the marked passages in the model text.

1. Main title – names the event and sells it: “Open Day at Schulzentrum Seetal – See Your Future in Action”
2. Question aimed straight at the reader: “Not sure what to do after lower secondary school?”
3. Tells the reader what they gain: “workshops, real projects and students who are happy to show you around”
4. Subheading – breaks the text into scannable sections: “Try Before You Choose”

5. Concrete, appealing detail: “build a small circuit, plan a three-course menu or design a marketing campaign”
6. Second subheading – tells the reader what they gain: “Meet the People, Not Just the Building”
7. Direct address keeps the reader involved: “Ask the people who live it.”
8. Speaks to HTL, HAK and HLW readers alike: “Whether you are drawn to technology, business or hospitality”
9. Concrete extras keep it persuasive: “you can add extras such as a second foreign language, a robotics team or a work placement abroad”
10. Call to action – tells the reader exactly what to do: “Come and See for Yourself”
11. Imperatives + repetition – persuasive leaflet style: “Bring your parents, bring a friend, bring your questions.”
12. Practical details – the facts people need: “When: Saturday, 7 November, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Where: Schulzentrum Seetal, Bildungsweg 1, 1234 Seetal More infor…”

USEFUL PHRASES

Attention-grabbing openers

- Looking for something to do this summer?
- Ever wondered what goes on behind our doors?
- New to the area? Here is where to start.
- Something new is coming to your town – and everyone is welcome.
- Good news for anyone who loves…

Describing & persuading

- Whether you are a complete beginner or already experienced,…
- There really is something for everyone.
- It is easier – and cheaper – than you might think.
- Best of all, it is completely free.
- No experience needed – just come as you are.

Direct address & calls to action

- Come along and see for yourself.
- Sign up today – places are limited.
- Bring a friend and make a day of it.
- Find out more on our website.
- Do not miss out.

Practical information & closings

- When: Saturday, 14 June, from 10 a.m.
- Where: the main hall, Hauptstraße 1.
- Entry is free. / Tickets: €5.
- For more information, visit www.…
- Questions? Call us on… or drop by any weekday.

More online. On the website this text type also has a second model text (“Recycle Right – The New Kerbside Scheme for Seetal”, ~250 words · persuasive) and a realistic borderline text with notes on where it loses marks: matura.bernhardgmeiner.com/leaflet/